

Verification vs. Attestation (mini video)

Script

Both of these are part of the process of creating the link between a physical person and a digital identity (called ENROLLMENT).

The person being enrolled VERIFIES their identity by presenting various types evidence of their identity (called EOI); this is VERIFICATION. [On-screen examples of EOI.] On the other side, the Attestation Officer ATTESTS to that presentation of evidence by observing and recording; this is ATTESTATION.

Both VERIFICATION and ATTESTATION come with legal responsibility. The person presenting verification has legal responsibility for telling the truth (secured by an affidavit and an oath); the Attestation Officer has legal responsibility for accurately documenting and recording the verification presented (secured by their notarial oath of office).
